

Being Essential®
Who is
Who

Jenny Grigoropoulos

Doctor of Education Leadership & Management, Trainer, Facilitator

About me

Jenny is a highly experienced corporate trainer and educator with over 35 years of dedicated service in the field of education and training. Holding a Doctorate in Educational Leadership and Management, she has a profound understanding of educational methodologies and corporate training strategies. Jenny is passionate about continuous learning and committed to fostering professional growth and development.

Education

Doctor of Educational Leadership and Management | St. Thomas University
Master's (MBA) in International Business Administration | University of La Verne
Double Major: Bachelor's in Business Management and Marketing | University of Maryland and University of La Verne

Certifications & Seminars

Yale University | The Science of Well-Being, 2021-ongoing
Blended Learning: Personalizing Education, 2020-ongoing
University of Washington | Introduction to Public Speaking, 2020-ongoing
Greek Kapodistrian University | Theatre in education
NLP Facilitator | 2017
Speaking Skills seminars | 2018-ongoing
A.J. Juliani | Genius Hour Training
Barclays Bank | New Supervisor Training
Barclays Bank | Products & Services Training
Barclays Bank | Advanced Training Program
Angela Watson | 40HTW Program & Graduate, 2017-ongoing
Certified National School Reform Faculty (NSRF) Coach and Facilitator, since 2014
Critical Friends Group Coach, since 2014

Experience

With over three decades of experience in education and training, Jenny has served in various influential roles across academic institutions and corporate settings.

She has studied and holds degrees from University of Maryland, University of LaVerne, University of West Florida, and University of St. Thomas while she is currently attending her post-Doctorate studies in Educational Leadership and Management, at AIU. She has authored articles published in international journals while her chapter contribution to publications through her authorship is included in libraries such as Princeton and indexed in ERIC.

Jenny has held several adjunct professorships, teaching courses in Marketing Management, Industrial Organization, Business Leadership, and Management at institutions, such as Southeastern University and the University of Bolton. In addition to her academic roles, Jenny has extensive experience in the business world as a bank employee and supervisor as well as, company owner. This background allows her to connect theory and practice, enhancing her value as a corporate coach and trainer.

Jenny's professional affiliations add significant value to her corporate training capabilities. She serves as the HR Vice President of Toastmasters, which enhances her leadership and public speaking skills. As a member of the Honor Society Kappa Gamma Pi since 2019, she demonstrates her commitment to academic excellence and community service. Additionally, her certifications as a National School Reform Faculty (NSRF) Coach and Facilitator, and as a Critical Friends Group Coach since 2014, underscore her expertise in coaching and facilitating professional development, further enriching her ability to deliver impactful training programs in corporate settings.

Jenny's expertise in Leadership and Management, combined with her experience across diverse industries, makes her a valuable asset to any organization seeking to enhance their training and development programs. Her dynamic, collaborative, and resourceful approach, along with her belief in team building and systems thinking, contributes to the kaleidoscope of experience and expertise she brings to her role as a corporate trainer.